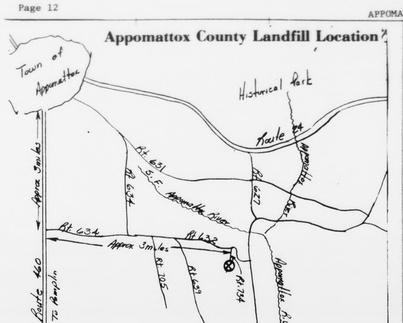
Appomattox County Landfill Location



The map above shows the location (indicated by an x) of the new Appomattox County Landfill which officially opened for public use July 1, 1973.

The state maintained road into the landfill is complete with road numbers up. You should have no trouble finding the county landfill if you will follow the directions above on the map.

From the Town of Appomattox, take Route 460 East approximately three miles (or to the Blue Haven), turn left from Route 460 onto Route 643 then follow Route 632 to Route 734 - turn right and you will be at the landfill which is approximately three miles off Route 460.

Citizens of our county are urged to obey the regulations in order to make this system work as it should.

100 EXTRA JOBS MEAN TO A COMMUNITY

changes are attributed to the increase in manufacturing employment.

In metropolitan areas this relationship is less definite.

This study, contained in a booklet entitled "What New Jobs Mean To A Community", does not say whether growth is good or bad. But economic growth will be needed if the quality of life is to continue to improve.

The real issue is not growth or no growth, but rather the kind of growth, especially its quality. In the coming of Thomasville Furniture Industries to Appomattox, we can look forward to quality.

What 100 extra jobs can mean to a community is shown above . . . the new industry coming to Appomattox plans to reach an employment of 700 within a few years.

There can be no doubt . . . Appomattox is A Growing Town!

SENATOR BYRD TO SPEAK

BLACKSBURG—Sen. Harry F. Byrd Jr. will be the featured speaker at 10 a.m. at the annual Animal Industry Day to be held on the Virginia Tech campus July 20. Byrd will discuss the future of animal agriculture in Virginia.

Following the morning program, those attending will be invited to walk among numerous exhibits and demonstrations on current research at Tech and other topics of current interest.

The traditional pork-barbeque and burger lunch will be served, courtesy of several agri-business and producer organizations, said T. R. Lambuth, assistant professor of animal science and Extension specialist at Tech.

After lunch, interest programs on various species of livestock will be held. Life cycle nutrition of swine and low-cost wintering systems for cattle and sheep will be featured at this time.

The day will close with a discussion and demonstration of the latest in hay and forage handling equipment and methods. The event will end at 3:30 p.m., Lambuth said.

Am I Covered?

Q: Will you explain what Driving Record Points are, how they are assigned, and how they increase the motorist's insurance premium?

A: Driving record points are aquired for traffic violations and accidents in which the driver is at fault. They are a penalty for bad driving, and are assigned for a period of 39 months, for the applicant and any driver who is a resident of the same household. For traffic violations which result in conviction, points are assigned if a Safety Responsibility Form #22 is required. This is a form that declares that the driver has insurance in the amount required by law, and that he will be able to pay for any future damage he may cause up to the limits of the policy. Only the Division of Motor Vehicles may require that this form be filed. In effect, it is a warning that if the driver continues to operate his vehicle as he has been doing, he is going to cause an accident. Three points may be assigned for the following convictions: Driving while intoxicated or under the influence of drugs; hit and run; homicide or assault with an automobile; driving while under suspension or revocation. Two points are assigned for: Reckless driving or a series of violations requiring an SR 22. One point is given for any other violation requiring an SR 22. For accidents, the driver earns one point for each accident he causes which results in property damage in excell of $100, or in bodily injury to any person in either vehicle. There are exceptions to this, such as being lawfully parked, hit in the rear and not charged with a violation, being a victim of a hit and run driver, accidents involving damage by animals, damage caused by falling rocks or flying gravel, etc., when the other party reimburses for the accident. As far as points increasing the insurance rate, they can go from approximately $60 extra cost for one point up to $900 extra for four points. If the driver is in the Assigned Risk Plan he could pay more than $1200 for seven points.

Va. Leads Nation in Tree Planting

A national survey indicates that Virginia's private woodland owners are leading all other states in forest tree planting, direct seeding, and preparing areas for natural regeneration of forest trees, proudly announced George W. Dean, State Forester, Virginia Division of Forestry.

The survey for the fiscal year 1972 shows that 2,910 Virginia landowners planted trees on more than 49,000 acres. The state of Georgia placed second with 33,000 acres and Alabama was third with 29,000 acres. When the planted acreages of large forest industries and government are included, Virginia ranks fourth in the nation in total acreage planted.

In the direct seeding category Virginia also ranks first in acreage planted by non-industry landowners. In second place was Missouri with 592 acres direct seeded. Virginia ranked ninth when government and forest industry acreages were included. Direct seeding is the sowing of forest tree seed, usually pine seed, rather than planting small trees on prepared land. This procedure is similar to gardening. In some cases gardeners set plants, i.e. tomatoes and cabbage, and in other situations the seed is sown or drilled in the prepared areas. Examples of this are corn, wheat and radishes.

In the category of site preparation for natural regeneration, Virginia landowners prepared 37,414 acres and the next closest was Idaho with 21,000 acres. Virginia also ranked first, 71,000 acres, with Georgia a distant second when government and forest industry acreages were included.

Dean said, "Virginians should be proud of their reforestation efforts. It is essential that we plant trees, pine especially, at an ever increasing rate to offset the pine deficit disclosed in the 1966 forest inventory. We have over 65,000 Virginia wage earners directly dependent on the forest industry which, in turn, is dependent on the raw material supplied by our forests. The citizens of the state and nation demand the products of the industry, Virginia can and must retain her leadership position because of economics and other reasons."

"I feel confident," concluded Dean, "that the 1973 fiscal year report will show Virginia in the first place spot once again."
